

Journal of Advanced Multidisciplinary Dental Research

Multidisciplinary dentistry should be given utmost priority because of its prime importance in bringing various branches of dentistry together in managing multidisciplinary cases. This special issue greatly elaborates on this topic and devotes considerable attention to advanced research carried out in multidisciplinary cases. The aim of this special issue is to promote the advancements in dental research which in turn helps in evidenced based clinical practice.